DC Judge Says Freedmen Have Cherokee Citizenship Right

A D.C. federal judge ruled Wednesday that the descendants of slaves who had been owned by members of the Cherokee Nation have the same right as native Cherokees to citizenship in the tribe under an 1866 treaty, despite the Nation's efforts to exclude them from its rolls. Read more »

Calif. Judge Nixes Suit Over Remains At Tribal Casino Site

A California federal judge on Wednesday dismissed a suit against the federal government and others by former Jamul Indian Village leaders over the alleged disinterment of their deceased relatives' remains during the construction of the tribe's San Diego-area casino, saying the tribe is a necessary party but can't be joined to the case because of its sovereign immunity.
